Cyber Security is all about ensuring the safety of data, information, resources, intellectual property, services, applications and systems. It includes preventing any unauthorized intrusion of, and theft or corruption of, information. It has become a major concern in India, as the country is fast becoming the cyber capital of the world. The rise in Cyber Attacks is a sign that the level of sophistication and capabilities of cybercrime in India is on the rise, and that security companies should prepare themselves for this growing threat. A preliminary assessment by KPMG and CISCO showed that from 2016 to 2017, India saw an almost 1,000% increase in the number of cyberattacks, from 1,037 in 2016 to a staggering 4,939 in 2017. Also, the costs of these attacks are estimated to have gone up by at least 50% from 2017 to 2018. The recent revelation of a massive and complex hacking attack on India's telecoms infrastructure reveals the extent of the problem. Cyber security is evolving rapidly with new tools and techniques being developed and implemented. It is an issue that is becoming increasingly complex with new vulnerabilities being introduced into the system every day, and it is a task that requires dedicated professionals for effective mitigation and resolution. The autoantibodies that are directed against proteins of the inner mitochondrial membrane: a review. Autoantibodies directed against proteins of the inner mitochondrial membrane are extremely rare. They have been reported in patients with autoimmune or rheumatic diseases and other diseases. They are also found in patients with primary biliary cirrhosis and in some healthy individuals. The specific proteins that are recognized are the phosphate carrier protein (AAC), the NADH-ubiquinone oxidoreductase (complex I) and the sirtuin 7 protein. The potential reasons
